

Observatory on the Protection of Taxpayers' Rights

Below you will find a questionnaire filled in by Aleksander Pevec, Attorney at Odvetnik Aleksander Pevec and Boštjan M. Zupančič, Former Judge at the European Court of Human Rights, both National Reporters of Slovenia.

This set of questionnaires comprise the National Reporters' assessment on the country practice during 2019 in the protection of taxpayers' rights (Questionnaire # 1), and the level of fulfilment of the minimum standards and best practices on the practical protection of taxpayers' rights identified by Prof. Dr. Philip Baker and Prof. Dr. Pasquale Pistone at the 2015 IFA Congress on "The Practical Protection of Taxpayers' Fundamental Rights" (Questionnaire # 2). These questionnaires were filled in considering the following parameters:

1. For Questionnaire # 1, an assertive assessment (yes/no) was required on the effective implementation in domestic law of 82 legal safeguards, guarantees and procedures relevant in 12 specific areas for the practical protection of taxpayers' rights, as identified by Baker & Pistone in 2015. This line of questioning aims to get an overview of the state of protection of taxpayers' rights in the country in 2019.
2. For Questionnaire # 2, an impartial, non-judgmental evaluation was required on the developments, either of improvement or of decline, in the level of realisation of 57 minimum standards and 44 best practices, distributed into 87 benchmarks for the practical protection of taxpayers' rights. In this regard, a summary of events occurred in 2019 (legislation enacted, administrative rulings, circulars, case law, tax administration practices), that serve as grounds for each particular assessment, was also required.

IBFD Observatory on the Protection of Taxpayers' Rights

Dear National Reporter,

On behalf of Prof. Dr. Philip Baker and Prof. Dr. Pasquale Pistone, I would like to thank you for your participation in the IBFD's Observatory on the Protection of Taxpayers' Rights (OPTR).

As you are aware, the OPTR aims to keep track of the developments in the practical protection of taxpayers' rights around the world. We intend to do so through the valuable and timely information you are kindly supplying, as member of your country's group of experts. Practitioners, tax authorities, academics and the judiciary of each surveyed country form national groups, to obtain a neutral, balanced report on the situation of taxpayers' rights in these countries.

Following you will find two questionnaires, of twelve sections each, aiming to compile relevant information regarding the level of practical implementation of the minimum standards and best practices of 12 taxpayers' rights, as identified by Prof. Dr. Baker and Prof. Dr. Pistone in Basel, 2015. We kindly ask you to fill them out completely, according to the instructions provided at the beginning of each questionnaire.

We would be very grateful if you submit us this questionnaire, duly filled out, by no later than 17 January 2020. We remain at your disposal for any clarification you may need.

We look forward to your valuable contribution to what we believe is an extraordinary project!

Kind regards,

Prof. Dr. Carlos E. Weffe
Managing Editor

There have been cases of politically sensitive tax information to be leaked to the media. No matter there is an audit trail within the tax authority the exchange of information with other state agencies enables the culprits to remain anonymous.

22 (A). Freedom of information legislation may allow a taxpayer to access information about himself. There was a Constitutional court's precedent in 2016 which enabled third parties to access information regarding tax audits of a company which gave consent to their inclusion in the proceeding. Those third parties previously unsuccessfully instigated separate court proceedings. However, the Supreme Court which subsequently decided the case of that company repudiated following this precedent. The matter is again to be decided by the Constitutional court.

Please provide separately (via optr@ibfd.org) an annex with the actual wording of relevant excerpts of your country's legislation regarding this matter. Technically accurate translations of such material into English, if possible, would be very appreciated. Thank you.

There was an important victory in 2016 for the legal profession. The constitutional court decided that lawyers and their clients enjoy a wide legal professional privilege regarding criminal investigations. This also applied to tax proceedings and was in practice recognised to encompass tax advisors as well (their profession is unregulated). In 2019, however, the DAC 6 Directive 2018/822/EU has been implemented which significantly reduced that privilege. It enables lawyers to escape the obligation to report suspicious tax schemes but shifted this burden to their clients. There are also administrative penalties for non-compliance.

25 (A). Where tax authorities enter premises which may contain privileged material, arrangements should be made (e.g. an independent lawyer) to protect that privilege. *

IV. Normal audits

26 (A). Audits should respect the following principles: (i) Proportionality. (2) Ne bis in idem (prohibition of double jeopardy). (3) Audi alteram partem (right to be heard before any decision is taken). (4) Nemo tenetur se detegere (principle against self/incrimination). Tax notices issued in violation of these principles should be null and void. *

- No changes
- Shifted away from the minimum standard
- Shifted towards / improved the minimum standard

26 (B). Summary of relevant facts in 2019

The issue of nemo tenetur principle is currently pending before the criminal court in Ljubljana which might open the issue of constitutionality of the tax legislation with a possible referral to the constitutional court. Regarding proportionality and audiatur et altera pars principles matters are deteriorating in practice. Ne bis in idem could easily be avoided by reopening of tax proceedings. When a taxpayer, on the other hand, wants to reopen a proceeding due to new facts and evidence the jurisprudence of the administrative courts is very strict. Therefore, there is not equality of arms in that respect. This issue is currently pending before the Constitutional court.

27 (A). In application of proportionality, tax authorities may only request for information that is strictly needed, not otherwise available, and must impose least burdensome impact on taxpayers. *

- No changes
- Shifted away from the minimum standard
- Shifted towards / improved the minimum standard

27 (B). Summary of relevant facts in 2019

Normally, the tax authorities would respect personal sphere of taxpayers. What is problematic is their quick recourse to the rule of the burden of proof in tax audits.

28 (A). In application of ne bis in idem the taxpayer should only receive one audit per taxable period, except when facts that become known after the audit was completed. *

- No changes
- Shifted away from the best practice
- Shifted towards / matched the best practice

28 (B). Summary of relevant facts in 2019

There is an equality of arms issue regarding reopening of proceedings whereby the tax authorities may easily obtain information from third parties or by audits of the third parties. On the other hand, the Supreme court severely limited this possibility for taxpayers by stating that the evidence must already have existed before the first proceeding ended. This issue is currently pending before the Constitutional court.

29 (A). In application of audi alteram partem, taxpayers should have the right to attend all relevant meetings with tax authorities (assisted by advisors), the right to provide factual information, and to present their views before decisions of the tax authorities become final.

29 (B). Summary of relevant facts in 2019

Those principles are regulated in the tax legislation. However, the tax jurisprudence has over years become too lenient towards the tax authorities. Therefore, the Chamber of Tax Advisors is drafting a Code of Taxpayer's rights and publicly emphasising the importance of these principles.

30 (A). In application of nemo tenetur, the right to remain silent should be respected in all tax audits. *

30 (B). Summary of relevant facts in 2019

Unfortunately, this principle has not been enacted within tax legislation. The wide possibilities of exchange of information with other government agencies makes this particularly burning issue. In the past criminal courts have not adequately addressed this issue by having to lenient approach. Unless this issue is resolved by the constitutional court following a referral by a criminal court or by means of a constitutional complaint by an individual the issue could not be resolved,

41 (B). Summary of relevant facts in 2019

There are no adequate provisions in tax legislation. Therefore, taxpayers are not given this protection. The problem originates from the strict delimitation of competence between the Ministry of Finance preparing tax legislation and the Ministry of Justice preparing penal legislation. Since tax disputes do not involve criminal charges administrative courts have not opened this issue with a referral to the Constitutional court. Criminal courts, on the other hand, are focused on penal legislation and do not deal with tax legislation at all. The issue is to be resolved by the Constitutional court.

85 (C). Summary of relevant facts in 2019

A charter of taxpayers' rights has just been drafted by the Chamber of Tax advisors. It remains to be seen whether the legislator would follow this initiative and adopt the Charter as an official legal document. There are some pending criminal proceedings where the issue of the so-called Miranda-warnings during tax audits when there are already criminal proceedings in place has been recently highlighted. This might even lead to the constitutional court dealing with the issue.

86 (A). A taxpayer advocate or ombudsman should be established to scrutinise the operations of the tax authority, handle specific complaints, and intervene in appropriate cases. Best practice is the establishment of a separate office within the tax authority but independent from normal operations of that authority. *
