IBFD expands presence in multinational China

Today, IBFD is holding the latest of its prestigious International Tax Lecture Series for its largest and most diverse audience so far. Over 200 tax professionals have gathered in Shanghai to discuss the impact of the BEPS Project on China. Building on its long history of cross-border taxation expertise, IBFD is now expanding strong relationships with government and academia to include multinational businesses and tax advisory firms active in China.

From the outset, China has been an important partner of the BEPS Project and has made a unique contribution. IBFD's 7th International Tax Lecture provides a platform for discussion and clarification of key BEPS issues from notable tax experts, as well as insights from State Administration of Taxation (SAT) officials.

Today's event harnesses IBFD's rich academic and governmental background and long-lasting relationships; SAT Commissioner Wang Jun recently invited IBFD's CEO Sam van der Feltz to attend the OECD Forum on Tax Administration in Beijing. This was followed by last month's visit to IBFD's head office in Amsterdam by a SAT delegation to discuss how strategic targets are being met to implement central-level tax policy throughout the entire organization.

With the 7th International Tax Lecture, IBFD also upholds its mission to advance the dissemination and understanding of information on cross-border taxation by uniquely offering the opportunity to learn and share views for free.
