

Traditional and Alternative Routes to European Tax Integration

Table of Contents

Preface

List of Abbreviations

Chapter 0. The General Report

Dennis Weber

- 0.1. Traditional and alternative routes to European tax integration
- 0.2. Overview of the subjects
 - 0.2.1. Part One – Sources of EU law for integration in direct and indirect taxation
 - 0.2.2. Part Two – Soft law: solution or disillusion? Limits?
 - 0.2.3. Part Three – Infringement procedures: another way to move things further?
 - 0.2.4. Part Four – Comitology
 - 0.2.5. Part Five – Relationship between primary and secondary EU law
 - 0.2.6. Part Six – VAT Directive tested against primary law
 - 0.2.7. Part Seven – Direct tax directives tested against primary law

Part One

Sources of EU law for integration in direct and indirect taxation

Chapter 1. Sources of EU law for integration in taxation

Annette Schrauwen

- 1.1. Introduction
- 1.2. Integration in taxation and the market
- 1.3. Integration in taxation and policy goals beyond the market
- 1.4. Integration in taxation and administrative incentives
- 1.5. Enhanced cooperation as an alternative for 'traditional' harmonization?
 - 1.5.1. Substantive conditions
 - 1.5.2. Procedural conditions
 - 1.5.3. Procedural issues related to established enhanced cooperation
- 1.6. Conclusion

Chapter 2. Sources of EU law for European tax integration: well-known and alternative legal instruments

Eric C.C.M. Kemmeren

- 2.1. Introduction
- 2.2. The establishment of the internal market requires European tax integration
- 2.3. Main causes for the lack of European tax integration
- 2.4. Means for European tax integration
- 2.5. Hard law and soft law instruments in taxation

- 2.5.1. Hard law instruments in taxation
- 2.5.2. Soft law instruments in taxation
- 2.6. Appropriate legal instruments to remove tax discrimination/restrictions, State aid and distortions
 - 2.6.1. Appropriate legal instruments to remove tax discrimination/restrictions
 - 2.6.2. Appropriate legal instruments to remove tax State aid
 - 2.6.3. Appropriate legal instruments to remove tax distortions
- 2.7. Outlook: Appropriate (legal) instruments for further European tax integration

Part Two

Soft law: solution or disillusion? Limits?

Chapter 3. The function of EU soft law

Daniel Sarmiento

- 3.1. The origins of soft law
- 3.2. Conceptualizing soft law
 - 3.2.1. Hard Law / Soft Law
 - 3.2.2. Internal Soft Law / External Soft Law
 - 3.2.3. Unilateral / Bilateral / Multilateral Soft Law
 - 3.2.4. Typology and legal consequences
- 3.3. The functions of soft law
 - 3.3.1 Interpretative effects
 - 3.3.2. Liability: legitimate expectations and soft law
- 3.4. Judicial review of soft law
- 3.5. Stretching the Functions of EU soft law

Chapter 4. The Code of Conduct for Business Taxation: An evaluation of an EU soft law instrument

Hans Gribnau

- 4.1. Introduction
- 4.2. The Code of Conduct for Business Taxation
- 4.3. Soft Law in the EU
 - 4.3.1. Governance and Soft Law in the EU
 - 4.3.2. Core elements of EU soft law
 - 4.3.3. The complex relationship between soft law and hard law
- 4.4. Varieties of EU Soft Law
 - 4.4.1. Preparatory and informative instruments
 - 4.4.2. Interpretative and decisional instruments
 - 4.4.3. Steering instruments
- 4.5. Soft Law, Cooperation and Public Consultation
 - 4.5.1. Cooperation and Reciprocal Commitment
 - 4.5.2. Public consultation, participation and EU soft law
- 4.6. Conclusion

Chapter 5. Soft tax law: steering legal pluralism towards international tax coordination

Pasquale Pistone

- 5.1. Introduction
- 5.2. Legal pluralism and international taxation in the European Union
- 5.3. Soft international tax law
 - 5.3.1. Soft international tax law and the role of the OECD
 - 5.3.2. Consensus and soft international tax law: the issue of the democratic deficit
 - 5.3.3. The formation of soft international tax law
 - 5.3.4. Soft international tax law and customary international law
- 5.4. The use of soft law in European international taxation

Part Three

Infringement procedures: another way to move things further?

Chapter 6. Contribution of infringements procedures to European tax integration

Adam Zalasiński

- 6.1. Introduction
- 6.2. Institutional system of the European Union and European tax integration
- 6.3. Infringements procedure – an outline
- 6.4. Processes of legal unification in the EU and infringements procedure
 - 6.4.1. Legislative process
 - 6.4.2. Law-making impact of the CJ's decisions
 - 6.4.3. Infringements procedure and the earlier body of the CJ's case law
 - 6.4.4. The effects of infringements on the law-making process in the Member States
- 5. Conclusion

Part Four Comitology

Chapter 7. Comitology: an alternative route towards European direct tax integration?

Peter Adriaansen

- 7.1. Introduction
- 7.2. Comitology; legal framework and institutional history
 - 7.2.1. Delegation of powers
 - 7.2.2. Legal framework
 - 7.2.3. Comitology as an instrument for problem-solving
- 7.3. Comitology in the field of taxation
 - 7.3.1. Excise duties

- 7.3.2. Mutual Assistance Directive
- 7.3.3. Common Consolidated Corporate Tax Base
- 7.3.4. Administrative cooperation
- 7.3.5. Savings Directive
- 7.4. Comitology: an alternative route towards European direct tax integration?

Part Five

Relationship between primary and secondary EU law

Chapter 8. Review of legality of secondary legislation based on infringements of the rights of free movement

Karsten Engsig Sørensen

- 8.1. Introduction
- 8.2. Starting point: Secondary legislation has to comply with the rights of free movement
- 8.3. Adjusting the test used in reviewing legality
 - 8.3.1. Testing for customs duties and charges having equivalent effect
 - 8.3.2. The concept of restrictions
 - 8.3.3. Justification of restrictions
 - 8.3.4. Testing for proportionality
- 8.4. Different types of legislation
 - 8.4.1. Substantive content and aim of legislation
 - 8.4.2. Exhaustive harmonization
- 5. Conclusions

Chapter 9. The relationship between primary and secondary EU law in tax law: the legitimacy of different interpretation criteria applied to EU and national legal sources

Ana Paula Dourado

- 9.1. Legal Sources and levels of analysis involved
- 9.2. The relevance of the literal element of interpretation of EU secondary legislation, taking as example the Gaz de France case
- 9.3. The relevant elements on interpretation of secondary EU law in the light of primary EU law: a case of originalism in interpretation?
- 9.4. Reconciliatory interpretation based on originalism: assessment of its value
- 9.5. The Merger Directive, the Interest-Royalty Directive and allocation of taxing rights versus exercise of taxing rights
- 9.6. Other parameters of interpretation of EU secondary law in tax matters
 - 9.6.1. Derogations and transitional regimes
 - 9.6.2. Optional rules vs. clear, precise and unconditional rules
- 9.7. Partial vs. full harmonization and concluding remarks

Chapter 10. The influence of primary law on the interpretation of secondary law in the field of EU citizenship and direct taxation: “whatever works” ...

Rita Szudoczky

- 10.1. Reconciliatory interpretation of secondary law with primary law
- 10.2. Cases on EU citizenship
 - 10.2.1. Introduction
 - 10.2.2. Article 21 of the TFEU and the directives concerning residence rights
 - 10.2.3. Students
 - 10.2.3.1. Cases concerning the Students Directive
 - 10.2.3.2. Cases concerning Directive 2004/38
 - 10.2.4. Job-seekers
 - 10.2.4.1. Cases decided under the primary law freedoms
 - 10.2.4.2. Cases concerning Directive 2004/38
 - 10.2.5. Assessment of the cases concerning EU citizenship
- 10.3. Cases on direct taxation
 - 10.3.1. Introduction
 - 10.3.2. Cases concerning the Parent-Subsidiary Directive
- 10.4. Conclusion

Part Six VAT directive tested against primary law

Chapter 11. VAT and general principles of EU law

Joachim Englisch

- 11.1. Introduction
- 11.2. The “principle” of proportionality
- 11.3. Equality Principle
 - 11.3.1. Fiscal Neutrality
 - 11.3.2. Consumption Tax Principle
 - 11.3.3. Legal Presumptions, Generalizing Classifications and Lump-sum Rules
 - 11.3.4. Compensation of Advantages and Disadvantages
 - 11.3.5. Inherent Limits to Equality at the Borders of Harmonization
- 11.4. Freedom rights
 - 11.4.1. Fundamental rights of the taxable person
 - 11.4.2. Fundamental rights of the intended final taxpayer: the final consumer
- 11.5. Legal Certainty, Legitimate Expectations and the Prohibition of Retroactivity
 - 11.5.1. General Requirements
 - 11.5.2. Non-retroactivity and legitimate expectations
- 11.6. Formal Legality of Taxation
- 11.7. Conclusion

Chapter 12. VAT and the EU internal market: The paradoxes of harmonization

Rita de la Feria

- 12.1. Introduction
- 12.2. VAT: A Tax at the Centre of Internal Market Policy
- 12.3. Hierarchy of EU Norms and the Role of the CJ Post-Harmonization
 - 12.3.1. Hierarchy of EU norms
 - 12.3.2. Hierarchy of EU norms applied to VAT
 - 12.3.3. Role of the CJ post-harmonization
- 12.4. (In)compatibility of VAT Law with the EU Internal Market
 - 12.4.1. The concept of EU internal market
 - 14.4.2. Why the current VAT law is incompatible with the internal market
 - 14.4.2.1. Historical arguments
 - 14.4.2.2. Practical arguments
 - 14.4.2.3. Jurisprudential arguments
 - 14.4.3. CJ approach: VAT vs. direct taxation
- 14.5. Conclusion: The Constitutional Function of the CJ

Part Seven

Direct tax directives tested against primary law

Chapter 13. Fundamental freedoms and directives in the area of direct taxation

Georg Kofler, Mario Tenore

- 13.1. Introduction
- 13.2. Fundamental Freedoms, Direct Tax Directives and National Implementation
 - 13.2.1 Overview
 - 13.2.2 Situations outside the Subjective or Objective Scope of a Directive
 - 13.2.3 Substantive Prerequisites for the Application of a Directive
 - 13.2.4 Member States' Exercise of Options Granted in a Directive
- 13.3 Different Treatment within the Directives
- 13.4 Third-Country Issues
- 13.5 Conclusions