First copy of book on Tax Risk Management presented to Tax Administration

Amsterdam, 8 July 2010 – Horizontal monitoring and tax risk management are high on the Dutch Tax Administration’s agenda. This was clearly visible on Friday 2 July 2010, when the book Tax Risk Management was presented to Theo Poolen, member of the Tax Administration’s management team. The book, put together by IBFD and containing contributions from a number of Deloitte’s tax experts, focuses on limiting tax risks for enterprises.

Sander Kloosterhof, one of the contributors and co-editor of the book and partner at Deloitte Belastingadviseurs, considers the attention for the book to be a good development. “This publication brings together opinions and visions of quite a few experts. They provide insight into a new field of tax expertise, encompassing horizontal supervision, tax accounting and tax assurance. By showing Deloitte’s views in this important book we are able to share our expertise in this field.”

“The book provides an overview of the legislation, rules and the approach of tax authorities, governance bodies and some multinationals with respect to tax risk management. The book will assist tax authorities, legislators, tax practitioners and tax directors in their daily practice by providing a better understanding of the complex issues of tax risk as well as its effective management “, according to Anuschka Bakker, Chief Editor Topicals at IBFD.

About the publication ‘Tax Risk Management’
