Table of Contents

Abstract v
List of Abbreviations vii

Chapter 1: Introduction and Methodological Premises 1
1.1. The scope and purpose of this thesis 1
1.2. The approach to treaty interpretation 6
1.2.1. The importance of history: Documents from the OECD archives 16
1.2.2. Dealing with undefined treaty terms 22
1.2.3. The role of domestic court decisions in interpretation 33
1.2.4. The case for an international tax language 37

Chapter 2: The Structure and Workings of Art. 2 of the OECD Model Conventions 43
2.1. The general description in Art. 2(1) and (2) 45
2.2. The list of taxes in Art. 2(3) 47
2.3. Art. 2(3) relating to Paras. 1 and 2 50
2.4. The relation between Para. 3 and Para. 4 56
2.5. Automatic extension to “substantially similar” taxes in Art. 2(4) 58
2.6. The role of Paras. 1 and 2 in the light of Art. 2(4) 68
2.7. Notification of changes under Art. 2(4) 71
2.8. Summary of results 76

Chapter 3: Looking behind the Formal Structure of Art. 2: The Substantive Scope of Tax Treaties 79
3.1. General concept of taxes covered 79
3.1.1. The concept of “tax” in Art. 2 79
3.1.1.1. Common conceptual principles 79
3.1.1.2. Indirect taxes 91
3.1.1.3. Interest and penalties 97
3.1.1.4. Payments “on behalf of” the state 101
3.1.1.5. Local taxes 104
3.1.1.6. “Ordinary” and “extraordinary” taxes 106
3.1.1.7. Earmarked taxes 110
Table of Contents

3.1.8. Social security charges 111
   3.1.8.1. Influence of EC coordination law and social security conventions 119

3.1.2. Art. 2 in the system of the treaty 129
   3.1.2.1. Relation to the distributive rules 129
   3.1.2.2. Relation to the elimination rules 130
   3.1.2.3. Different concepts of tax within the treaty 133
      3.1.2.3.1. The non-discrimination provision 134
      3.1.2.3.2. Provisions on exchange of information and assistance in the collection of taxes 141

3.2. Taxes on income and on capital 145
   3.2.1. The concept of income in tax treaties 146
      3.2.1.1. The schedular system of tax treaties 146
      3.2.1.2. Basic common consensus on the concept of income 147
      3.2.1.3. “Fictitious income” in tax treaties 150
         3.2.1.3.1. Income fictions in domestic tax systems 150
         3.2.1.3.2. Inferences from the income allocation provisions 156
         3.2.1.3.3. Fictitious income and timing mismatch – “exit taxes” 158
         3.2.1.3.4. Treatment of domestic income fictions under tax treaties 162
         3.2.1.3.5. Conclusions 165
   3.2.2. Delimitation between taxes on income and taxes on capital 167
      3.2.2.1. “Personal” and “impersonal” taxes 170
      3.2.2.2. Capital gains taxes 174

3.3. Taxes on estates, inheritances and gifts 178
   3.3.1. Context of the 1982 OECD Model Convention 178
   3.3.2. Estates, inheritances and gifts 182
      3.3.2.1. Conditional transfers, usufruct, fideicommissum 185
      3.3.2.2. Trusts and foundations 186
      3.3.2.3. Income/capital vs estates/inheritances/gifts 189
Table of Contents

3.4. Delimitation between the OECD Model Conventions on Income and on Capital, and on Estates, Inheritances and Gifts
   3.4.1. Resolving overlaps in substantive scope 194
   3.4.2. A note on the non-discrimination provision 201

Interpretive Results and Outlook 203

Annex I: The Substantive Scope throughout History 211

Annex II: The Substantive Scope in Early Treaties 223

Bibliography and References 227